Dear Sir or Madam

The Cashel Palace is a beautiful and elegant place, which has inspired travellers, writers and clergymen for centuries and still continues to capture the hearts and imaginations of all its guests.

This 1730 Queen Anne style house has woven Susan and I into its rich and varied tapestry, just as it has done with all of its past owners and visitors. We have discovered over time that we are merely guardians of this resplendent and historic house. The Cashel Palace has survived rebellion and has been home to Archbishops, Earls and Lords. This place has never been owned, it has simply adopted appropriate sentinels as the years have passed.

A striking feature of the hotel is that despite the formality of its architecture, the overwhelming atmosphere is one of warmth and welcome. We are proud of the standards of service achieved by our trusted staff, whose professionalism and dedication are beyond reproach.

We along with our staff, invite you to be inspired by the Cashel Palace Hotel. Thank you for your interest in Cashel Palace. We look forward to welcoming you soon

Yours Faithfully,

Pat & Susan Murphy
Proprietors

RELAXATION AND ENJOYMENT

The Guinness Bar

The Cashel Palace is inextricably linked to the world famous Guinness Brewery. In the 1740's Richard Guinis, father of Arthur, provided the Archbishop with his own stout, "the Wine of Ireland".

The descendants of Richard Guinis' hop plants are still tended in the Palace gardens. We are proud of this ancient connection with a Brewery, which has become synonymous with everything that is Irish, hence we have named our bar "The Guinness Bar". We look forward to tutoring you in the finer points of sampling a pint of Guinness.
